REPUBLICAN BEN CARSON OPTS AGAINST JOB IN TRUMP CABINET

Retired neurosurgeon Ben Carson, a former 2016 Republican presidential candidate who is an adviser to President-elect Donald Trump, has opted against accepting a Cabinet position in the Trump administration, his spokesman said on Tuesday. Carson, a popular writer and speaker in conservative circles, has been a close adviser to Trump and is a vice chairman of Trump's transition team. He has been mentioned as a possible secretary of health and human services or education. Carson's business manager, Armstrong Williams, said Carson has made clear he has no experience in running a federal bureaucracy. "Dr. Carson doesn't feel like that's the best way for him to serve the president-elect," Williams told Reuters. REUTERS

SIX UTAH HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS STABBED, INCLUDING TEEN SUSPECT

Five students were stabbed inside a Utah high school boys' locker room on Tuesday before the 16-year-old male suspect turned the weapon on himself, school officials said. The incident at Mountain View High School in Orem, Utah, occurred just before 8 a.m. MT, and prompted a brief lockdown of the school, the Alpine School District said in a statement. The stabbing suspect was apprehended by a school resource officer before he and the victims were transported to local hospitals, the school district said. Their injuries range from minor to critical, it added. Police did not release additional details about the circumstances surrounding the attack or what might have motivated it. Students were released to their parents later in the morning, police said. REUTERS

TWITTER TO UPGRADE SOME FEATURES TO THWART CYBERBULLYING

Twitter, facing pressure for not doing enough to curb abusive behavior on its platform, said on Tuesday it would upgrade some features to better combat cyberbullying. The company said it would expand the "mute" option to allow users to block tweets based on keywords, phrases and the content of conversations from a user's notifications. The "mute" option currently allows users to block tweets from accounts. The change will be rolled out to all users in the coming days, Twitter said in a blog post. Twitter, which has struggled to strike a balance between free expression and blocking violent and hateful speech, has come under increasing criticism following complaints from users that they have been the target of abuse. REUTERS

Mayor Bill De Blasio talks about President-elect Donald Trump on Nov. 10. GETTY IMAGES

De Blasio promises to protect undocumented immigrants' ID-card data from Trump

"I want everyone in New York City to know that we are standing by our values and we will fight to protect our values," the mayor said.

AMANDA MIKELBERG
@MetroNewYork
amanda.mikelberg@metro.us

A cache of data on undocumented immigrants accumulated by New York City will not be penetrated without a "real fight," Mayor Bill de Blasio pledged.

In January 2015, the city launched IDNYC, the country's "most ambitious municipal identification program," according to the office of the mayor. The program provided more than 850,000 people, including many undocumented immigrants, a free and legitimate identification card without having to disclose their legal status.

The card could be used to open bank and credit union accounts, apply for a library card, get prescription discounts through Big AppleRx and provide access to cultural attractions in New York.

The card also provides trans people a way to verify their gender identity.

"This card represents who we are: New Yorkers who value equality, opportunity and diversity," de Blasio said at the program's unveiling.

In light of President-elect Donald Trump's professed desire to track down undocumented persons, many aspects of the city's ID program are being questioned and present new challenges to the city in privacy protection. Trump reiterated his pledge to pursue "illegal" immigrants on his post-election "60 Minutes" interview which aired Sunday.

But the mayor resolved to prevent the future president from accessing the city's encrypted IDNYC databases, which contain reams of personal information — addresses, contact information, birth dates and places of origin. And it cannot be disclosed to federal law enforcement or immigration authorities without permission from the city's human resources administration, CNN reported.

"[Trump] can change some federal laws but the Constitution protects a lot of the rights and powers of localities," de Blasio said.

The concern is that the city's database could end up as the polestar of Trump's deportation endeavor.

"So on something like [the ID database], I think because it touches that button directly of whether people's personal privacy is going to be respected," de Blasio said in a news conference. "I think that's one where there would be a real fight."

The mayor also said he might activate a provision of the law to destroy the information: A part of the ID law permits information to be erased by the end of the year, a deadline reportedly included because of the prospect that a "Tea Party Republican" might be elected, a proponent of the legislation told CNN.

"As you know, there's been an ongoing plan regardless of any electoral activity how long records are kept. Given this new reality, we're certainly going to assess how we should handle it," he said.

"I want everyone in New York City to know that we are standing by our values and we will fight to protect our values," de Blasio said.

In addition to the seizing of information, New York City's status as a "sanctuary city," which in some cases can protect law-breaking undocumented persons from deportation, is also vulnerable. Trump has mentioned an intent to remove funding for sanctuary cities.

"Block funding for sanctuary cities ... no more funding. We will end the sanctuary cities that have resulted in so many needless deaths," Trump said at a campaign stop in Phoenix in August. "Cities that refuse to cooperate with federal authorities will not receive taxpayer dollars."

SPLC: New York ranks high in post-election hate incidents

The Southern Poverty Law Center has set up a website to collect reports of hate incidents.

GARY KANE
@MetroNewYork
gary.kane@metro.us

New York state has reported 15 hate incidents since the election of Donald Trump as president, according to the Southern Poverty Law Center.

The state is among the places nationwide with the highest number of hate incidents, which includes acts ranging from physical assaults to racial emails to Nazi graffiti.

As of Tuesday, a total of 437 such incidents have been reported nationwide since Election Day, according to the center, a nonprofit organization founded in 1971 to monitor hate groups and racial injustices.

The center launched a website last week to track hate incidents.

Center employees are

collecting data on hate incidents from news media reports, social media postings and direct submissions by victims and witnesses. They attempt to confirm each reported incident.

Within the state, 15 hate incidents were identified in New York City since election night, the center said.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo last week ordered investigations into two hate incidents.

In one, a residence assistant at a student dormitory at SUNY Geneseo found a swastika and the word "Trump" painted in a common area of the building.

The other incident occurred in Wellsville, where someone had spray-painted "Make America White Again" and a swastika on a dug-out at a softball field.

Cuomo ordered the state police and the Division of Human Rights to investigate the incidents.

"To any New Yorker who is scared, I want you to know that we have your back, we will keep you safe, and that protecting your rights is what America stands for," the governor said.

The president-elect

said during an interview on "60 Minutes" that was aired Sunday that he was unaware of a spike in racist incidents.

"I am very surprised to hear that — I hate to hear that, I mean I hate to hear that," Trump said. "But I think it's a very small amount."

Fewer books borrowed at NYC libraries

Fewer people are borrowing books, videos and other items from New York City libraries, but a growing number of residents are attending such library programs as film screenings and English language classes, according to city data.

Use of the city's libraries has fallen, according to a report issued Tuesday by the New York City Independent Budget Office. Libraries in the five boroughs recorded nearly 45.7 million visits in 2009, but saw attendance drop to 37.5 million visits last year, a decline of almost 18 percent.

Although the total number of library visits has fallen, libraries are seeing a boost in the numbers of people attending various programs, from films to classes to speaking engagements.

Attendance at such programs has doubled since 2007, when 1.9 million people took advantage of the library events. Last year, nearly four million people attended library programs, the budget office said.

"Over the past several years, branch libraries in all three systems have become broader community resources rather than repositories of books and information," wrote Katie Hanna, author of the report.

The three systems are Brooklyn, Queens and the combination of Manhattan, Staten Island and the Bronx.

As fewer visits are recorded at libraries, the number of borrowed books and other material has also declined. Last year, 50.7 million items were circulated, a 25 percent decrease from 2011, the report states.

However, the use of wireless services offered by libraries is on the upswing. About 3.6 million Wi-Fi sessions happened at libraries last year, nearly double the amount in 2007, the report states.

The budget office found that boosting city subsidies to allow library branches to be open six days a week did almost nothing to attract more users. GARY KANE

Police: Mother found dead after father abandons child in Port Authority

The search for the parents of a 5-year-old girl abandoned in the Port Authority bus terminal has led to the discovery of her mother's body in a Connecticut apartment, police said.

Commuters notified police at about 10 a.m. Monday that they had seen a child who seemed to have been left alone in the terminal for a considerable period of time. The girl then told police that she and her father, Elmer Gomez Ruono, had taken a bus to the terminal. Upon their arrival, he told her to wait for him, but didn't return, she said.

Speaking mostly Spanish, the girl was able to direct authorities to an apartment in Stamford, Connecticut, where police discovered the body of the girl's mother and signs of a struggle. The family is believed to have moved to Stamford from New Jersey just days before.

Police now consider Ruono a person of interest in the homicide. He is described as approximately 5-foot-6, weighing around 140 pounds with long, black hair.

McCray intends to expand Thrive NYC nationwide

America needs access to mental health services now more than ever, says the city's first lady.

KATE MOONEY
@MetroNewYork
kate.mooney@metro.us

Last month, NYC's first lady Chirlane McCray launched a free 24 hour mental health hotline as part of Thrive NYC, the program she spearheaded to increase access to mental health services and provide resources for New Yorkers suffering from anxiety and depression.

Today, she hopes to expand the initiative into a nationwide coalition known as "Cities Thrive."

At the inaugural "Cities Thrive" conference Tuesday morning at Fordham University, McCray announced her vision to create a national network of more than 300 cities by 2018 to enact mental health reform (so far, 26 cities are on board).

In the one week since Donald Trump was elected president, the nation has seen a rash of hate crimes, petty violence and even a spike in calls to suicide hotlines. As many struggle to come to terms with what the new presidency could bring — including, for many, potentially losing their health care if Trump succeeds in repealing the Affordable Care Act — the "Cities Thrive" initiative is more crucial than ever, the city's first lady said.

"We don't yet know exactly what the next president and the next Congress are thinking when it comes to mental health, which makes this coalition all that more vital," she said.

As one of the first steps of the new initiative, McCray plans to lobby senators for the passage of "The Helping Families in Mental Health Crisis Act," which cleared the House of Representatives in July. The bill includes the creation of a new position in the Department of Health and Human Services: an assistant secretary of mental health and substance abuse disorders. It also proposes an increase in beds in psychiatric hospitals and expansion of mental health services to underserved communities.

West Virginia mayor quits after comment on Michelle Obama

The mayor of a tiny West Virginia town resigned on Tuesday after her comment on a Facebook post that called first lady Michelle Obama an "ape in heels" drew international attention, local media reported.

Mayor Beverly Whaling of Clay, a town of some 500 people about 25 miles northeast of state capital Charleston, came under fire for her reaction to the post from a development official following Republican Donald Trump's victory in last week's presidential election.

Pamela Ramsey Taylor, director of Clay County Development Corp, praised the shift from Obama to former model Melania Trump. According to Charleston's WSAZ TV, she wrote: "It will be refreshing to have a classy, beautiful, dignified first lady back in the White House. I'm tired of seeing an ape in heels."

Whaling responded: "Just made my day Pam." The posts were deleted, according to local reports, but circulated widely on social media.

Whaling handed in her resignation, the Charleston Gazette-Mail said, citing city councilman Jason Hubbard. WSAZ also reported her resignation.

A woman who answered the phone at the Clay County Development Corp, a government-funded nonprofit, confirmed Whaling's exit, saying she had seen the resignation letter. Taylor resigned on Friday, said the woman, who declined to give her name.

Calls to the mayor's office went unanswered.

An online petition calling for the women's ouster drew 150,000 signatures as of Tuesday afternoon.

Whaling apologized in a statement sent on Monday to The Washington Post, saying her comment was not intended to be racist.

"I was referring to my day being made for change in the White House! I am truly sorry for any hard feeling this may have caused!" she wrote.

Dakota Access pipeline protests spread as firms defend project

The $3.7 billion Dakota Access project has drawn steady opposition from the Standing Rock Sioux tribe as well as environmental activists who say it could pollute nearby water supplies and destroy sacred historic tribal sites.

The companies behind the Dakota Access Pipeline asked a U.S. court to intervene in the fight over its completion as demonstrators fanned out across North America on Tuesday to protest the controversial project.

In what were expected to be the largest demonstrations to date against the pipeline, people across North America rallied outside Army Corps of Engineers offices, banks and energy companies, a day after the U.S. government delayed granting an easement for the pipeline's construction in North Dakota.

Fumi Tosu, 38, said he saw police use mace and arrest several other protesters in Cannon Ball, North Dakota, near the path of the pipeline, and the site of ongoing protests since the summer.

"Their job is to protect us, but instead they're protecting corporate interests and profits and money," said Tosu of San Jose, California.

Energy Transfer Partners, the main company behind the pipeline, and its subsidiary, Sunoco Logistics Partners, filed papers on Monday night in U.S. district court in Washington, D.C., seeking declaratory relief to "end the administration's political interference in the Dakota Access Pipeline review process." They noted that the delays have already cost them more than $100 million.

More than 200 protests were called by indigenous leaders in support of the tribe and to get the U.S. government to stop the pipeline, according to Dallas Goldtooth, a spokesman for Indigenous Environmental Network, one of the organizers.

"There's a lot of bad things happening in the world and people feel like they have no control but this is a very direct example of how people can fight injustice," said Austin Patrie, 20, who rode a motorcycle over 1,000 miles from his home in Kalamazoo, Michigan, to take part in the Cannon Ball protest.

The companies are seeking an easement to tunnel under Lake Oahe, the water source at the heart of the protests. On Monday the Army Corps delayed that approval, which was seen as a partial victory for the protesters.

The Army Corps said it plans to get more input from the Standing Rock Sioux in light of the tribe repeatedly being "dispossessed" from its lands in the past. Government officials have not said how long the process would take, according to a source familiar with the matter.

Construction of the 1,172-mile pipeline is nearly done. The only work left in North Dakota is the segment to run under the lake, Energy Transfer said last week. The company has been moving drilling equipment to the site in anticipation of being able to start tunneling later this month. REUTERS

Southwest employee shot dead in Oklahoma airport, flights halted

A Southwest Airlines employee was fatally shot at Oklahoma City's main airport on Tuesday, prompting authorities to halt flights and impose a shelter in place order to allow police to search for a suspect.

No information was available about the motive for the shooting in a parking lot at Will Rogers World Airport, Oklahoma City Police Captain Paco Balderama told reporters.

The man killed was identified by police as Michael Winchester, 52, who was transported from the scene and died in hospital.

Police said that there was no active shooter but police planned to evacuate the airport as part of their investigation.

"We have potential leads to a possible suspect. We have not positively identified the suspect," Balderama told reporters.

ESPN reported that Winchester was the father of NFL player James Winchester, who is a long snapper for the Kansas City Chiefs.

Ken Sarnoff, the agent for James Winchester, on Twitter said that the player lost his father. REUTERS

The link between sugar consumption and increased body fat has long been known. Too much sugar in the diet promotes more insulin, the fat storing hormone, and thus more body fat.

THE SLIMMING EFFECT OF STABLE BLOOD SUGAR LEVELS

Recently an Italian study of a sugar-blocking supplement showed significant weight loss results.¹ The supplement, called Zuccarin™, produced on average 20 pounds of weight loss, in the 90 day study.

The subjects lost 10% of their body weight and lost 3 times the weight of the control group, who were also on a 1300 calorie controlled diet, but not taking the Zuccarin supplement. In addition, the subjects also experienced healthier blood sugar levels after using Zuccarin.

The explanation for the weight loss is that Zuccarin uses mulberry leaf extract and chromium to promote healthy blood sugar levels. Mulberry leaf has shown to reduce the absorption of sugars in the foods we eat. When these sugars are undigested, our blood sugar stabilizes and, according to experts, weight loss can occur.

ZUCCARIN™ CHANGED MY LIFE

"I read about Zuccarin in a magazine and since I have blood sugar issues, I started taking this supplement. I have taken it for 2 years now and can't imagine being without it. I have seen my blood sugar levels stabilize and I have even lost 25 pounds of weight since starting. I have recommended Zuccarin to a lot of my friends and they are now experiencing the same good results as I have. I love this product."

Billionaire green activist Steyer vows to battle Trump, says money not an issue

Tom Steyer's pledge to fight Trump suggests an intensifying battle for U.S. public opinion on global climate change, an issue that has already divided many Americans, lawmakers, and companies between those who consider it a major global threat and those who doubt its existence.

Tom Steyer poses for a portrait in Washington, D.C. GETTY IMAGES

"Did we get the president we want? Absolutely not. Did we get a majority of clean-energy supporters in the Senate? No."

Steyer

Billionaire environmental activist Tom Steyer, who has spent more than $140 million fighting climate change, said Tuesday he will spend whatever it takes to fight President-elect Donald Trump's pro-drilling and anti-regulation agenda.

The former hedge-fund manager from California is putting together a strategy that will "engage voters and citizens to fight back" once Trump takes the White House in January, he told Reuters. However, he stressed he was not planning to fight Trump through the courts.

Instead, he would focus on "trying to present an opposite point of view and trying to get that point of view expressed, and communicated to citizens."

Other U.S. environmental groups are also preparing to resist Trump's agenda, with some vowing street protests and more established organizations that helped draft some of President Barack Obama's environmental regulations preparing to defend them in court.

"We have always been willing to do whatever is necessary," Steyer said, when asked how much money he was willing to spend to oppose Trump's agenda.

Trump campaigned on a promise to drastically reduce environmental regulation and ease permitting for infrastructure, moves he said would breathe life into an oil and gas industry ailing from low prices, without harming U.S. air and water quality.

He has also called climate change a hoax and has promised to "cancel" the Paris Climate Accord between nearly 200 nations to slow global warming, a deal he said would cost the U.S. economy trillions of dollars and put it at a disadvantage.

While the approach has cheered the industry, it has sent shockwaves through the environmental movement, which is confronting the prospect of losing all progress it made during the Obama administration.

Steyer, who had endorsed Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton, called Trump's policies dangerous.

"Every single one of these things, whether it was getting rid of Paris or cutting back the EPA, we think are extremely dangerous to the security of every American," Steyer said. "We think it is based on willful ignorance of the facts and flies in the face of the realities facing the world."

Steyer's main political vehicle, NextGen Climate, on Tuesday called on the Obama administration to defy Trump's pro-drilling agenda by issuing an order permanently blocking all new drilling in the Atlantic and Arctic Oceans.

The White House did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Trump has also promised to ask Canadian oil pipeline company, TransCanada Corp, to resubmit its application to build a pipeline into the United States that would link Alberta's vast oil sands to American refineries and ports on the Gulf Coast. The project, Keystone XL, had been rejected by the Obama administration after years of mass protests and lobbying by environmental organizations.

Steyer said the project may no longer make sense since a slump in oil prices has reduced the profitability of oil sands production. REUTERS.

Google, Facebook to restrict ads on fake news sites

The issue has provoked a fierce debate within Facebook, especially with Chief Executive Mark Zuckerberg insisting twice in recent days that the site had no role in influencing the election.

Alphabet Inc.'s Google and Facebook Inc. on Monday announced measures aimed at halting the spread of "fake news" on the internet by targeting how some purveyors of phony content make money: advertising.

Google said it is working on a policy change to prevent websites that misrepresent content from using its AdSense advertising network, while Facebook updated its advertising policies to spell out that its ban on deceptive and misleading content applies to fake news.

The shifts comes as Google, Facebook and Twitter Inc. face a backlash over the role they played in the presidential election by allowing the spread of false and often malicious information that might have swayed voters toward Republican candidate Donald Trump.

Facebook's steps are limited to its ad policies, and do not target fake news sites shared by users on their news feeds.

cludes fake news," Facebook said in a statement, adding that it will continue to vet publishers to ensure compliance.

Google's move similarly does not address the issue of fake news or hoaxes appearing in Google search results. That happened in the last few days, when a search for "final election count" for a time took users to a fake news story saying Trump won the popular vote. Votes are still being counted, with Democratic candidate Hillary Clinton showing a slight lead.

Nor does Google suggest that the company has moved to a mechanism for rating the accuracy of particular articles.

Rather, the change is aimed at assuring that publishers on the network are legitimate and eliminating financial incentives that appear to have driven the production of much fake news.

"Moving forward, we will restrict ad serving on pages that misrepresent, misstate, or conceal information about the publisher, the publisher's content, or the primary purpose of the web property," Google said in a statement.

The company did not detail how it would implement or enforce the new policy.

AdSense, which allows advertisers to place text ads on the millions of websites that are part of Google's network, is a major source of money for many publishers.

A report in BuzzFeed News last month showed how tiny publishers in Macedonia were creating websites with fake news — much of it denigrating Clinton — which were widely shared on Facebook.

That sharing in turn led people to click on links which brought them to the Macedonian websites, which could then make money on the traffic via Google's AdSense.

Facebook has been widely blamed for allowing the spread of online misinformation, most of it pro-Trump, but Zuckerberg has rejected the notion that Facebook influenced the outcome of the election or that fake news is a major problem on the service.

"Of all the content on Facebook, more than 99 percent of what people see is authentic," he wrote in a blog post on Saturday. "Only a very small amount is fake news and hoaxes."

Google has long had rules for its AdSense program, barring ads from appearing next to pornography or violent content. Work on the policy update announced on Monday began before the election, a Google spokeswoman said.

The company uses a combination of humans and artificial intelligence to review sites that apply to be a part of AdSense, and sites continue to be monitored after they are accepted, a former Google employee who worked on ad systems said. Google's artificial intelligence systems learn from sites that have been removed from the program, speeding the removal of similar sites. REUTERS

BRIEF

Six Flags aiming to open first Saudi park by 2021

Six Flags Entertainment Corp.'s expansion into Saudi Arabia will probably include three parks, with the first to open in 2020 or 2021, its executive chairman said.

The parks, which each cost between $300 and $500 million to build, will likely be owned by the Saudi government, Jim Reid-Anderson told Reuters on the sidelines of the MiSK entrepreneurship forum in Riyadh.

"The parks are likely to be government-owned, although that's not guaranteed yet, because talks are still early and there can be changes," he said.

The first park is tentatively planned for Riyadh, Saudi Arabia's conservative capital city, he said. Others may follow in Jeddah and at a resort elsewhere on the western Red Sea coast.

A waiver from Dubai Parks and Resorts, which holds exclusive rights to develop and operate

Six Flags-branded theme parks in the six member states of the Gulf Cooperation Council, would enable the Saudi parks to carry the Six Flags name.

U.S.-based Six Flags announced in June that it had begun talks with the Saudi government to build theme parks as part of the kingdom's efforts to expand its entertainment sector and diversify the economy.

Developing the leisure sector is fraught with difficulties in Saudi Arabia, which adheres to a strict social code where women are required to wear plain loose-fitting robes, cinemas are banned and public spaces are gender-segregated.

Reid-Anderson said it was too early to say whether the Six Flags parks would be segregated or whether there would be any restrictions placed on women's access to the rides, which elsewhere include roller coasters and water slides. REUTERS

North Korea does not care who is president of United States the U.S. Terminal High Altitude Area Defence (THAAD) system in the South to counter missile and nuclear threats from the North.

North Korea has been under U.N. sanctions since 2006.

North Korea does not care who is president of the United States, a senior Pyongyang-based diplomat said during a visit to the United Nations on Tuesday following the election of Donald Trump to succeed President Barack Obama.

Kim Yong Ho, director of human rights and humanitarian issues, spoke to reporters after a U.N. General Assembly committee approved a draft resolution condemning "widespread and gross violations of human rights" in the Asian state.

"We do not care about whoever becomes the president of the United States," Kim said. "The fundamental issue here is whether or not the United States has the political will to withdraw its hostile policy toward the DPRK [North Korea]."

North Korea regularly accuses the United States and South Korea of preparing for war by holding annual joint military exercises. The United States and South Korea also plan to deploy Trump said in May he was willing to talk to North Korean leader Kim Jong Un to try to stop Pyongyang's nuclear program, proposing a major shift in U.S. policy toward the isolated nation.

However, ahead of the Nov. 8 election, an adviser to Trump said last month he could not foresee any circumstances in the short or medium term in which the Republican nominee would meet the leader of North Korea if he became president. In March, the Security Council tightened sanctions to further isolate the impoverished country after its fourth nuclear test in January and a long-range rocket launch in February.

Since North Korea's fifth and largest nuclear test more than two months ago, the United States and China, a close ally of North Korea, have been negotiating a new draft Security Council resolution to punish Pyongyang.

Elon Musk-backed AI startup and Microsoft sign cloud agreement

OpenAI will use Azure for its experiments in deep learning and AI, and Microsoft will collaborate with the company on advancing research and creating new tools and technologies.

OpenAI, the nonprofit artificial intelligence (AI) research firm backed by Tesla Motors Inc.'s Elon Musk and other prominent tech executives, has signed an agreement to run most of its large-scale experiments on Microsoft Corp.'s flagship cloud service, Azure.

Musk, along with venture capitalist Sam Altman, co-chairs OpenAI, whose backers apart from Musk include Amazon.com Inc.'s Amazon Web Services and tech investor Peter Thiel and LinkedIn Corp. co-founder Reid Hoffman.

OpenAI is an early adopter of Microsoft's Azure N-Series Virtual Machines service, which will be generally available from December.

These cloud-computing services, which are powered by Nvidia Corp. graphics chips, are designed for the most intensive computing workloads, including deep learning and simulations.

"In the coming months we will use thousands to tens of thousands of these machines to increase both the number of experiments we run and the size of the models we train," OpenAI said in a blogpost.

The nonprofit was created last December for the purpose of creating AI that augments human capabilities.

The investors have committed $1 billion to the startup, but OpenAI said it expects to spend only a "tiny fraction" of that in the next few years.

OpenAI will continue to release open-source software to make it easier for people to run large-scale AI workloads on the cloud, and will provide Microsoft with feedback to ensure that Azure's capabilities keep pace with its advances in AI.

Take The Foot Health Checkup

- My toes are stretched, discolored and thickened.
- The sides of my toes dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "cramp" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight- they are all cocked-up, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thick no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my heel hurts all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and scaly- sometimes they itch.
- My feet feel hot all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rashes, or open sores.

THOUSANDS of knee arthritis sufferers flock for this advanced medical

Knee Arthritis Pain

Why patients come from Brooklyn, Queens, Long Island, the Bronx for this arthritis pain treatment . . . and why waiting

By Matt Edgar -
America's Health
Writer

NY Pain MD, a center for Non-Surgical Medical Relief For Spine And Joint Pain Relief, is a medical clinic with multiple locations in New York City that has treated thousands of knee arthritis patients. Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. And why waiting can drastically decrease your chances to live a pain free life again.

The information you are about to read can possibly save you from years and years of agonizing knee pain. It might even keep you from getting total knee replacement surgery. Please pay careful attention.

What you are about to read is a cutting-edge medical treatment... But it is NOT what it appears to be at first glance. In fact, I'm going to have to ask for a bit of patience from you if you have already unsuccessfully tried any (or many) other knee arthritis pain treatments

You see, many knee arthritis sufferers had already tried what seemed to be similar treatments to what we are going to talk about and did not get the results they wanted. But I assure you there is something VERY DIFFERENT about the technology and the way we do this treatment that can possibly make it much more effective for many ... and it often gets results when many others have failed.

This is why patients come from all over the tri-state area and beyond to have their knee arthritis pain treated here.

Would You Like Instant Proof?

If you want instant proof - you can just look at all the actual patient testimonials we have included. These patients were once skeptical just like you ... and are now either pain free ... or eliminated quite a bit of their pain..

Here's the most important thing:

Many said they had seen this information SEVERAL times before finally deciding to take action and give us a call. As you can see - they are happy they did. Once crippled with knee pain, they are playing golf again, dancing again, riding bikes again and going for long walks again.

But We Do Get One Very Common Complaint ... And it is:

"I wish I started this treatment much sooner."

Let's be very clear about this. Time is the most precious thing. There is no way to slow it down - or get any of it back once it's gone.

All the more reason for you to not suffer even one more second than necessary. Missing life while suffering in pain is a tragedy. Isn't it time for you try to get rid of your knee pain and start living the life you want and deserve?

And please understand this: One of the keys to success in medicine is early diagnosis and treatment. Like many diseases, arthritis only gets worse over time. The longer you wait - the more damage to your knee and eventually- the more pain. If you wait "past the point of no return", the entire knee joint can be degenerated and your ONLY option will be total knee replacement.

If you are suffering with knee arthritis pain, here is why you should act NOW:

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubricating fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joint basically "dries up." The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid". Pharmaceutical companies can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during treatment... doctors precisely and directly apply these gel-like medicines into the knee joint. This helps replenish the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - cushioning the knee allowing it to move more freely and smoothly while often decreasing or even eliminating pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. In fact, it is impossible to predict results and there are no statistics proving what the "average" patients can expect. Everyone is individual and gets individual results - so we never tell anyone to expect the same results as any of our other patients. But to be 100% clear - many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years ... or even permanently cancel it.

What Are Treatments Like?

Treatments are simple, fast and virtually painless. The total time of the procedure itself is only 10 minutes and you walk out of the clinic just minutes after your procedure with nothing but a one inch band-aid on your knee.

But There Is A BIG Problem. The key is that the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. Often ignored by many other clinics, if the procedure is just slightly off, the medication will not get exactly into the knee joint and the treatment will not work. That's why the experts at NY Pain MD use what they call "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology" or P.A.T.T. - so they can confirm the special medicine went directly into the knee joint and not into the surrounding tissues.

Research shows that doctors performing procedures without Precision Arthritis Targeting can miss the joint as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation (or Stem Cells or PRP) without the exactness of P.A.T.T. and did not get good results - this may be why.

In fact, by using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology, NY Pain MD doctors are able to "double confirm" the precise placement of the natural arthritis medicines used. This is to help ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different brands and chemical make-ups. Just like all medications, some people respond better to some than others. While many doctors only use one type or formula, the experts at NY Pain MD use several. And great effort is taken to figure out which is best for YOU.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

Your Special Invitation

NY Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get their questions answered and find out if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NY Pain MD. To schedule a complimentary screening, all you have to do is call 800-227-KNEE. The screenings can fill up fast every month. But, this screening is at no cost and there is no further obligation. Call 800-227-KNEE to schedule your screening. Many of the procedures offered at NY Pain MD are often covered by many insurance plans, union plans, work comp and even traditional & AARP Medicare.

"I cannot ask for better results"

Dr. Stanley Weiner, M.D. - Surgeon

I had (replacement) surgery scheduled last year. But three months before the surgery I decided to make an appointment with NY Pain MD. I was amazed at the ease with which I was evaluated and the treatment schedule implemented. The results I had at NY Pain MD were outstanding. I cannot ask for better results. After the treatment I was able to go back to work with no discomfort at all. They use a digital monitor to locate the space that they use the treatment for and it's like exact science and I never had to have replacement.

Dr. Stanley Weiner MD

"Hey this feel terrific"

I was diagnosed with bone on bone about 2 years ago I went to see an Orthopedic Surgeon and he said my knees were shot and I need to get them replaced. The NY Pain guys said after looking at x-rays they could help. That procedure is so basic so simple so quick in 15 minutes you are in and out. When I got up out of the chair I stood up and I said, "Hey this feels terrific."

"I don't have any pain any more"

After I had the treatments ... the last tune up ... I just go right to the golf course. I'm able to keep up with these guys who walk - I'm right next to them! My guys on the golf course would say Hey, look at this he doesn't need us to put the ball up any more. When I'm playing on the course I don't have any pain any more I don't have any aches and pain. I'm out there playing!

"I feel like a new woman"

I came to the clinic because I was not sleeping at night. My leg was pounding. There were times when I sat too long the knee would tighten up. I would get in pain and I would be miserable and I would have it for the whole night. After the treatment I goof around with my grandchildren. I feel like a new woman. It's great. I know I don't have to sit on the couch and be in pain and I can just pick up and get dressed and go out. It was so gentle.

"I'm able to do it again"

It got to the point where I couldn't stand up for a period of time and I knew something had to be done about it. You walk into the doctors office - he puts your leg in a machine - he shows you where he is going to do the procedure and before you know it... It's done and you're outta there. Now I'm able to take out my bicycle and we took a couple of rides out in the woods and we had a good time and . . . I couldn't do that for years and now I'm able to do it again.

"I feel like a new woman - It's amazing"

The pain was excruciating like 24/7. Nothing I took over-the-counter would work so I knew it was something more serious. When I saw that my condition was not getting any better, I decided to do something about it and I immediately made an appointment - I went and started treatment. The feeling of getting back to my dancing and my mobility is indescribable. I feel like a new woman - It's amazing.

"I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure"

One day, as I was running, my knee got tighter and tighter. I had to stop and just walk home. They x-rayed me and said I was a candidate for treatment. You sit there for few minutes and then you are up and walking out the door. I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure because I could not run just weeks before. I ran my race without any issues. I felt good - it just opened a door that was closing.

"I Can Finally Live My Life"

Prior the relief center I was taking painkillers and I was becoming addicted to it and it was damaging my health. Since the treatment, I've been able to be less dependent on them. I don't feel helpless anymore. Since going through the procedure I can finally live. I can finally live my life.

Years-long rehab of towering US Capitol dome completed

The rebuilt cast-iron dome of the U.S. Capitol, a soaring symbol of national unity since the 19th century, was formally completed on Tuesday after a $60 million overhaul that included repairing rust-choked gutters and more than 1,300 cracks.

The project was the first complete rehabilitation of the 288-foot-tall Civil War-era dome since 1960. It was finished in time for the inauguration of President-elect Donald Trump on Jan. 20.

"It is the symbol of American democracy and a beacon of hope around the world, and we delivered," architect of the Capitol Stephen Ayers said at a news conference.

The structure tops the home of Congress and can be seen throughout the capital. The Capitol is a major tourist site, drawing thousands of visitors daily.

When work began

The interior of the recently restored U.S. Capitol dome. GETTY IMAGES in January 2014, the dome was suffering from water leaks, cracks and corrosion so bad that rain gutters were clogged with rust chips, Ayers said. Up to 13 layers of lead-based paint were removed and 666 feet of cracks were repaired.

Ayers, who was flanked by workers and executives, said the project relied on sophisticated software to keep track of repairs and used 3-D modeling to cast replacement parts. The structure is believed to be the biggest cast-iron dome in the world, he said.

Illustrating the fine detail involved in the repair work, officials displayed a fist-sized decorative acorn made up of seven parts, all of which had to be designed and replaced.

Repainting required a total of 1,215 gallons of paint, with the top of three coats in the color Dome White.

Lower Back Pain

Uterine fibroids are very common and treatable. 1 in 5 women experience fibroids during their child bearing years, and about 80% will have fibroids before the age of 50.

Do you have any of these symptoms?

- ☒ Bleeding between periods
- ☒ Heavy bleeding during periods
- ☒ Abnormally long periods
- ☒ Frequent urination
- ☒ Pelvic pain and pressure
- ☒ Pressure in your lower abdomen
- ☒ Pain during intercourse

Uterine Fibroid Embolization treatment at USA Vascular Centers can shrink fibroids up to 50% within 3-6 months. Treatment is a minimally invasive, non-surgical outpatient procedure with a short recovery and no hospitalization.

Ex-Ohio lawyer gets 12 years for hypnotizing, molesting female clients

A former Ohio lawyer was sentenced to 12 years in prison for hypnotizing and sexually abusing women clients, his attorney said on Tuesday.

Michael Fine, 59, was sentenced on Monday by judge Patricia Cosgrove and also ordered to register as a sex offender for 25 years, attorney John Pyle said.

Fine was set to go to trial on Sept. 19 in a Lorain County Court, about 30 miles west of Cleveland, but pleaded guilty six days before the trial was scheduled to open to five counts of kidnapping with sexual motivation and one count of attempted kidnapping.

Fine had practiced law since 1981, according to court records, but lost his license in November 2014 after the Lorain County

Michael Fine
LORAIN COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE HANDOUT

Bar Association filed a motion with the Ohio Supreme Court saying Fine, "utilized hypnotic therapy to facilitate the impairment of and sexual exploitation of his clients."

Law enforcement began its investigation into Fine in 2014 after a female client discovered her undergarments were disheveled and she could not recall what had occurred following meetings, according to the bar association filing.

The Sheffield Village Police Department investigated Fine, a former Sheffield, Ohio-based attorney, after nearly two dozen women came forward with similar complaints and a former client began tape recording her conversations with Fine.

The recordings revealed that Fine, shortly after the meetings started, "began to use 'code' words that induced [her] to enter a trance-like stage," according to the bar association filing.

One of Fine's victims testified before his sentencing and two others sent in statements, Pyle said. Fine, a married father of two daughters, was "full of remorse and regret" for his crimes, according to Pyle. REUTERS

The Rock is officially the Sexiest Man Alive

It seems that whatever Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson does, he has to be the best at it. When he played college football in Miami, his team won the national championship. As a professional wrestler, he won 17 WWE championships and is considered one of the greatest pro wrestlers of all time. This year, with films like "Central Intelligence" and Showtime's series "Baller" under his belt, he was world's highest-paid actor, according to Forbes. And now the 44-year-old has even taken sexy to new heights.

People magazine has named the Rock its 2016 Sexiest Man Alive. The new dad is in good company — he succeeds David Beckham as titleholder. The jack-of-all-trades told People that a "sense of humor" and "confidence" are the qualities that make him sexy.

We can think of a few other things, too.

Ashley Graham gets a curvy barbie

Model Ashley Graham has had an explosive year since she became the first plus-size model to cover Sports Illustrated's coveted swimsuit issue in February. Since then, she has started a plus-size lingerie line, which she modeled during New York Fashion Week. And in December, the 28-year-old will be co-hosting the revamped America's Next Top Model with Rita Ora on VH1!

But Graham's biggest accomplishment might only be about 10 inches tall. During Glamour's Women of the Year Awards gala in Hollywood, the model was presented with her very own curvy Barbie doll, complete with thighs that touch! Graham told the Huffington Post it was a detail she was adamant about when working with Mattel to create her plastic twin. She told the toy company "if her thighs don't touch, she's not authentic."

Graham was honored for promoting inclusivity in fashion. She proves that the mantra is true: Thick thighs do save lives!

Why Lady Gaga went off the grid

If Lady Gaga seems more tame and balanced since returning to the spotlight with her fifth solo studio album, "Joanne," there's a pretty good explanation for it. In an interview with Harper's Bazaar, the 30-year-old cover girl of the December issue explained why she took time off before the album.

"I was able to get off the train of endless work I'd been on, which was quite abusive to my body and my mind, and have some silence and some space around me," she told HB's fashion editor. "I wanted to experience music again the way I did when I was younger, when I just had to make it, instead of worrying what everybody thinks or being obsessed with things that aren't important."

Gaga also describes fame as "the best drug that's ever existed" but admits that as she's matured she is now more concerned with success that is based in truth as opposed to "more attention, more fame, more accolades."

Now we know why she calls it a "Fame Monster."

Gwen Stefani gives Blake Shelton a touching shoutout

Gwen Stefani was the proud recipient of Glamour's 2016 Woman of the Year Award, and during the annual awards gala in Hollywood, the 47-year-old singer and "Voice" coach gave a moving speech about the "seed of faith" her parents planted in her at a young age. In the speech, posted by E! News, she also reminded the young girls in the audience that anything was possible.

But the highlight was the very special shoutout she gave to her man, 40-year-old country singer Blake Shelton. She said, "To my children, to my family, to Blake Shelton for kissing me back to life, thank you so much. I am blown away." The couple met as coaches on "The Voice" following Stefani's divorce from Gavin Rossdale and Shelton's divorce from Miranda Lambert. They began dating last year.

We're so glad they're finding second, and third, chances at love with each other.

'JUSTIN TIMBERLAKE + THE TENNESSEE KIDS'

The former boy band in "Justin Timberlake + The Tennessee Kids"
TENNNMAN ENTERTAINMENT, INC., NETFLIX

When Jonathan Demme makes a concert movie, he doesn't just make a concert movie. "Stop Making Sense," his three Neil Young films and his new bash for Justin Timberlake may each be straight-up records of a show. But what makes Demme concert movies' greatest auteur is the way he captures the thrill, the joy, even the humanity of performance. The boy bander is the most mainstream name he's ever lensed, but you can see why he was drawn to him: Glitz and garishness and all, it's clear Timberlake sincerely loves his packed stadium shows. And it's not just about him: He loves his musicians, his backup singers, his crew and, of course, the throngs who've paid to be there. Timberlake feeds off everyone's energy, then gives back in kind. You don't have to know more than two Timberlake songs to find this 90 minutes of transcendence.

'HOT FUZZ'

"Spaced" and "Shaun of the Dead" bros Nick Frost and Simon Pegg star in "Hot Fuzz." UNIVERSAL PICTURES

Action and comedy are two genres that shouldn't go together. Frankly, they usually don't. More times than not they cancel each other out. We're not going to say "Hot Fuzz," Edgar Wright's chaser to "Shaun of the Dead," is better at action than it is comedy. But it's one of the few where the cheeky thrills don't get in the way of some truly inspired yuks. Simon Pegg proved he was as adept as a lean adrenaline junkie as he was a doughy slacker, playing a supercop banished to a Nowhere, England, town that's not as quaint as it looks. Wright knows the language of action better than most action-makers, and that includes the nonaction exposition, which proves funnier than when guns belatedly go blazing.

'ENCOUNTERS AT THE END OF THE WORLD'

Werner Herzog's "Encounters at the End of the World"
IMAGE ENTERTAINMENT

Time was Werner Herzog was a secret. Now he's a meme — an internet celebrity whose name your parents probably know. A man who (allegedly) pulled a gun on Klaus Kinski and brushed off being shot by an air rifle during an interview was destined to become clickbait. But he's still a filmmaker, and one of our most unique. Still, we'd say the last truly great film he made hails from 2007: his trip to Antarctica, where he hobnobs with reclusive scientists, muses on the cosmos and learns about suicidal penguins. It's a valentine to weirdos. That describes a lot of his films, but this one is better (and weirder) than most.

J.K. Rowling talks returning to the wizarding world (but not Harry Potter).

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

J.K. Rowling doesn't need to write anymore, not since the first Harry Potter book, let alone the seventh. It's not even that she wants to keep writing — she simply has to.

"I feel strange if I don't write," she says at a rare press conference appearance for "Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them," the Potter prequel film (the first of five), for which she wrote the screenplay.

"Ever since the end of Harry Potter, there was still a huge hole for more," she confesses. "It would be easy to say, 'I'll just keep producing,' but I never was that person. I planned seven books, I knew exactly what I wanted to write, and that story was finished. But I always had some ideas about Newt."

That would be Newt Scamander (Eddie Redmayne), the magizoologist

A 'Fantastic Beast' to wrangle

Newt Scamander (Eddie Redmayne) and a magical creature in "Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them," out Nov. 18. WARNER BROS.

gist "author" of Rowling's "Fantastic Beasts" wizarding textbook adapted into the film, which comes out Nov. 18.

Though she "had some thoughts about what happened to Newt and who he was," it wasn't until Warner Bros. approached her about doing the movie that she thought, "Wait a minute, I better tell them what I've got because I wouldn't want them to get anything wrong." And before I knew it, I'd actually written a screenplay."

But Scamander's world is still a scary place in which magic is hidden (Salem is not just a footnote yet) and wizards are not supposed to mingle with

"no-majs" like Jacob Kowalski (Dan Fogler), the factory worker who dreams of becoming a baker and, of course, gets swept up in Scamander's adventure along with a pair of sister witches.

Two names Potter fans will recognize are the villain who looms over the action, the original dark wizard Gellert Grindelwald, first friend then rival to Albus Dumbledore, the Hogwarts headmaster who has been confirmed to appear in the next film.

"There's lots to unpack in that relationship," Rowling says when asked about them (she controversially revealed that Dumbledore was gay during an interview at Carnegie Hall in 2007). "I will say that you'll see Dumbledore as a younger man, and quite a troubled man because he wasn't always the sage."

Oh, and all that writing she does?

There's no special formula — "it's partly inspiration and it's partly a lot of hard work, that's it, always."

Most envying-inducing of all, she can do it anywhere, anytime. "I can write with the TV on in the background, I can write half-answering my kids," she says. "I have written, surprisingly enough, one chapter actually on the lavatory because it was the only place I could get temporary peace." Enjoy speculating on that one.

Molly Bernard of 'Younger' talks the shock of Election 2016

"I wish I could give everybody a hug."

JENNIFER LOGUE
@jenniferlogue
jennifer.logue@metro.us

This has been quite the year for actress Molly Bernard. Aside from appearing alongside Tom Hanks in "Sully" and co-starring in the Emmy award-winning series "Transparent," the 28-year-old reprised her role as Lauren Heller, a vivacious pansexual publicist in TV Land's hit "Younger."

We chatted with the Brooklyn resident about how she's coping with the outcome of the presidential election, and what she loves about her free-spirited character on "Younger."

How are you dealing with the news of our president elect?

It's a shocker. I'm pretty

Molly Bernard plays Lauren Heller on the hit show "Younger." COURTESY OF TV LAND

sad. I was really excited to potentially have the first female president. What that would say for women everywhere is just extraordinary. Hopefully, Trump's policies will be kind and good-spirited. That's the only thing I'm hoping for now. It's going to take all of us as American citizens to extend a lot of kindness and generosity to people that we might not identify with.

We've come so far in TV with celebrating people of different backgrounds. Why is it taking so long for the rest of the country to catch up?

I don't understand it. I mean, I'm sitting here kind of lamenting and also asking myself these same questions. Tuesday was obviously a hard day. I don't know why it's taking the rest of the country so long. I feel like being in big cities like New York, like Philadelphia, like Chicago, like L.A. — it's more progressive and the rest of the country lives a very different life. It's complicated. I wish I had the answers. I wish I could give everybody a hug.

Your character on "Younger" is a riot. What do you love most about her?

The thing I love most about Lauren is that she unconditionally loves herself. It's just a joy to get into that headspace.

LOVE WHERE YOU LIVE

Holiday entertaining for the low-key host

Tips for stress-free gatherings with friends and family this season.

KATE MOONEY
@yatinbrooklyn
kate.mooney@metro.us

The holidays are a time of great indulgence and some relaxation — but also, stress. We want to enjoy the (limited) time off work with friends and family, but sometimes the thought of organizing a get-together can be more overwhelming than festive.

For those of us who'd rather not Seamless our holidays away (but might need a helping hand to keep from having a meltdown in the kitchen) we consulted a few experts for tips on how to make our holiday parties seamless — with a lowercase s.

Keep it healthy, but still festive

For Fiorella DiCarlo, the

NYC-based registered dietitian and certified dietitian nutritionist and host of the "Living in Italian" video series, healthy cooking and holiday entertaining aren't mutually exclusive.

For starters, begin the night with veggie- and protein-based hors d'oeuvres "to help minimize mindless munching on chips and starchy foods," that tend to fill up guests before the meal. DiCarlo suggests: endive leaves with grilled shrimp, caponata bruschetta, hummus with roasted carrots.

You can keep the nutrition going strong throughout the night, so long as you make flavor paramount. "Dress up your vegetables," she says. Think: roasted brussels sprouts with parmigiano reggiano and truffle oil.

For dessert, there are plenty of creative and tasty ways to incorporate fruit. Add seasonal fruits instead of crackers and bread with a cheese plate: baked pears with 16-month-old manchego drizzled with aged balsamic vinegar, she suggests. Or soak berries in limoncello or frangelina (Italian liqueurs) and serve over sorbetto with biscotti.

Try a tea party

Daphne Oz, co-host of ABC's "The Chew" and author of "The Happy Cook," says that when it comes to hosting friends for tea, stressing yourself out is the silliest thing you can do.

"The beauty of a tea party is you can keep it as casual or as fancy as you want," says the chef, who recently partnered with Pure Leaf teas to launch its newest selection of bagged and loose flavors.

"It's easy to set the vibe with pretty teacups, maybe candles or fresh flowers and a little crafting table," she says. While a tea tray and matching china set are wonderful assets, she prefers to mix and match cups and saucers she finds at yard sales and antique shops and cute boutiques. "Each one has a story, which I love," she says. "It's especially fun to let guests pick the one that speaks to them."

Oz keeps a drawer at home full of different tea varieties so guests can take their pick. She always provides honey, milk, lemon and sugar.

For a bite to go with the tea, Oz's go-to is the blueberry tea cake from her cookbook, which she describes as "my take on a classic yellow box cake dotted with juicy blueberries and topped with brown-sugar streusel."

For advice on entertaining with cocktails, we turned to Russell Davis, the mixology expert on Spike TV's "Bar Rescue" and president of nightlife-consulting firm Unlimited Liabilities. He's also the chief cocktail officer of Shaker & mixologist-designed cocktails at home (think Blue Apron, but for adult beverages).

Davis says that “fresh ingredients are key to a good cocktail and a good experience. A little showmanship goes a long way, when your guests see you fresh-grate nutmeg on a nog or squeeze the juice from a fresh lime.”

In planning what to serve, Davis suggests syncing the drink menu with the vibe of the party. If you're having friends over for a poker game, you might want to make drinks using darker spirits — Old Fashioneds. For brunch, on the other hand, go with a light and refreshing crowd-pleaser, like a Moscow Mule.

He also likes adding a twist to classic high-balls (that's a mixer plus spirit): for example, add pickled beets and rosemary to a gin and tonic.

Although we're talking cocktails, Davis says you should always provide a nonalco-

And keep a bottle of the good stuff (top-shelf tequila or bourbon) for a guest who might want to sit and sip it straight.

Elise Strachan, creator of the YouTube show "My Cupcake Addiction" and author of the cookbook "Sweet! Celebrations," says, "Don't be afraid to cheat a little. Homemade is amazing, but don't feel like you have to hand-make every pie crust and cookie dough."

Instead, choose a couple of items you're OK with buying premade and focus your energy on the treats you enjoy baking yourself.

A word of advice: Clear out the freezer in advance. That way, you'll have room to plan ahead. "If you need a pie for a holiday party, make two and freeze the other," she says.

To add color and festivity to your presentation, Strachan suggests covering books in wrapping or craft paper and using them as stands on which to display the desserts. She also adds candy jars to her dessert display, filling some with apples and oranges to give guests a healthy option.

Strachan's pro tip: plan ahead. "If you need a pie for a holiday party, make two and freeze the other." ISTOCK

ENTERING THE HOME STRETCH

Now in the second half of the season, it's more important than ever to do your research on the waiver wire. Be sure to check out Rotoballer.com's Fantasy Football Waiver Wire Tool for up-to-the-hour waiver wire advice and ideas, and to follow me @Roto_Dubs for quick-hitting news and analysis.

Explosive rookie providing spark for surging Seahawks

Rookie C.J. Prosise led the way for the Seahawks in their victory over the Patriots in Week 10, and it bodes well for his future prospects. Prosise not only led the team in rushing (66 yards on 17 carries), but he also provided a much-needed boost in the passing game with seven catches for 87 yards. Thomas Rawls will be back in the mix soon having fully healed from a broken fibula, but Prosise has done enough to earn touches both as a complement to Rawls and as the primary pass-catching back. He should be a top waiver add this week.

Jeffery suspension clears the way for Royal

With Jay Cutler back under center for the Bears, there was very little fantasy value for anyone but his top two pass-catchers, Alshon Jeffery and Zach Miller. With Jeffery now suspended for four games, Cutler will have no choice but to utilize his secondary receivers, specifically Eddie Royal. Royal has the most history with Cutler, and while Cameron Meredith has more upside given his skill set I trust Royal to have a higher weekly floor.

More mouths to feed means Montgomery's days are numbered

Ty Montgomery thrived in Weeks 6, 7 and 9 as the only healthy option

NFL power rankings | by Luke Miller

No. 1

Cowboys (8-1)

The league's best record, longest winning streak and best running back all reside in Dallas. Ezekiel Elliott is on pace to finish with 1,782 rushing yards, 26 shy of Eric Dickerson's rookie record. Since Week 2, he has not had a game with fewer than 92 yards rushing.

No. 4

Chiefs (7-2)

Eric Berry's 42-yard pick six and Marcus Peters' strip of Kelvin Benjamin to set up the winning field goal Sunday catalyzed a 17-point comeback victory over the Chargers. The Chiefs have never been an offensive powerhouse, but they've now won back-to-back games by dominating in both phases.

No. 2

Seahawks (6-2-1)

Seattle put the shoe on the other foot in New England, keeping the Patriots out of the end zone on four straight attempts from the goal line. Thomas Rawls may return against the Eagles this week. How will he fit into a backfield where C.J. Prosise seems to be supplanting Christine Michael?

No. 3

Patriots (7-2)

The Patriots have now lost twice at home in one season for the first time since 2012. When DeShawn Shead intercepted Tom Brady Sunday night, it was not just Brady's first interception of the season but the first one New England has thrown. It's remarkable when you consider they've used three QBs.

No. 5

Raiders (7-2)

Oakland spent its bye watching the Chiefs and Broncos win, no great shock when you consider those two teams. The Raiders now have three games they should be home favorites in Houston, Carolina and Buffalo, before a road date in KC. Circle their final game of the season: at Denver.

It might be time to move on from Ty Montgomery. GETTY IMAGES in the Packers backfield. However, with longtime backup James Starks finally fully recovered from knee surgery Montgomery took a backseat once again.

Starks had 10 touches to Montgomery's five, and it is likely that the ratio will skew even more in Starks' favor as he gets back up to speed. Montgomery has some limited value as the pass-catching back, and with his wide receiver eligibility, but his days as an every-week starting option are done.

NFL Sleepers of the Week

Each week we will identify three players worth taking a shot on in deeper leagues.

Cameron Brate, TE, Tampa Bay Buccaneers – With the Tampa Bay receiving corps still banged up, Brate is the clear No. 2 option behind Mike Evans. With a touchdown in three straight weeks, Brate is a low-end TE1.

Rob Kelley, RB, Washington Redskins – Kelley is the clear starting running back in Washington, and while he draws a tough matchup against Green Bay he should see the volume and goal-line touches to make him an RB2.

Robert Woods, WR, Buffalo Bills – Woods was a revelation against the vaunted Seahawks in Week 9, and he'll once again be Tyrod Taylor's top option against a beatable Bengals secondary.

No. 6

Broncos (7-3)

For the first time in NFL history, the deciding points in victory came on a blocked extra point returned for a two point score. The offense gained just 337 yards against the NFL's 29th-ranked defense in New Orleans. It's hard to decide what to make of the Broncos.

No. 8

Falcons (6-4)

They aren't coming apart quite like last year's Falcons, but Atlanta has now lost three of five. The strategy of "let Julio Jones get his" worked for the Eagles. The Falcons are 3-0 when Jones has less than four catches this season. In those last three losses he has 26 catches for 448 yards — but just one score.

No. 10

Texans (6-3)

The Texans are a hard team to read. They are the clear leaders of a weak division. They finally have their first road win after beginning the season undefeated at home and 0-3 on the road. Their losses have come to Denver, Minnesota and New England, and none of them have been "impressive" losses.

No. 7

Giants (6-3)

The Giants have won four games in a row. And with their next two games against Chicago and Cleveland, they may make it six. Sterling Shepard's winning TD catch on fourth down was nothing new for Giants fans. These cardiac kids have had only one game this season decided by more than one score.

No. 9

Lions (5-4)

It's gotta be nice to go into your bye week in second place and come out in first. That's what happened for Detroit while they watched the Vikings drop their fourth straight to Washington. Some credit is still due to the Lions though, who beat Minnesota to assure themselves a tie-breaker.

Best of the rest

- 11 — Redskins (5-3-1)
- 12 — Eagles (5-4)
- 13 — Dolphins (5-4)
- 14 — Vikings (5-4)
- 15 — Colts (4-5)
- 16 — Titans (5-5)
- 17 — Ravens (5-4)
- 18 — Bills (4-5)
- 19 — Cardinals (4-4-1)
- 20 — Steelers (4-5)
- 21 — Saints (4-5)
- 22 — Packers (4-5)
- 23 — Chargers (4-6)
- 24 — Buccaneers (4-5)

Aries Plan a vacation. Connecting with old friends will change the way you view someone or something. An educational pursuit will lead to new beginnings.

Taurus Taking positive action will be the best way to impress a loved one. Don't get discouraged if someone doesn't honor a promise. Take care of your responsibilities.

Gemini Bring about change if something isn't working out the way you want. Don't let anyone confuse you with misinformation or vague body language.

Cancer You need to keep your emotions in check. If you want to express your feelings, do so with actions. Make a loved one feel special with kindness.

Leo Socializing with business associates will require insight and restraint. You don't want to give anyone you work with the upper hand. Cautious action will keep you on top.

Virgo Problems will surface if you don't address emotional situations directly. If you love someone, you need to listen to and console him or her, and offer good advice.

Libra Taking short trips or looking for information that will help you get ahead are favored. Don't let the actions of others deter you from making headway.

Scorpio Don't let emotions catch you off-guard. Someone will use dishonest tactics to get you to indulge in something questionable. Find a peaceful solution.

Sagittarius An unusual offer will interest you. Whether it has to do with business or personal interests, participation will be your ticket to controlling a situation.

Capricorn Someone will try to limit your chance to advance. Avoid dealing with institutions or people who put too many demands on you. Trust in your abilities.

Aquarius Have fun with the people you love. Dealing with children will be enlightening as well as informative. Mix the old with the new, and strive to reach your goals.

Pisces Be realistic when discussing what you want. Listen to others' advice. Bring about change that will not only benefit you, but those you care about. EUGENIA LAST
